Cheryl,
Last year was great. We did well in debate, you and me as a team. I hope we can do as well or better this year. Last year was also great because we became such good friends. I hope we can continue to build our friendship. Over the summer we went our seprate ways, so now I hope we can stay close. Good Luck with school & better yet boys! Just wait till 1985!

Love,
Tracy.

Cheryl,
I'm so glad that we became closer! You are sweet and I can tell of good coming up way! I love ya like my very own sister and wish you all the best. No matter what, I'll always be here for ya! Our friendship means alot to me!

Luv Ya Lots!

A Whole New Game

Coming of age in 1982 with the addition of its first senior class and 496 new freshmen was a whole new game for James E. Taylor High School. In any game players must face struggles and contests, and high school, when looked at as a game, is no more than a series of competitions, both individual and team related. Football, basketball, band competitions, speech and drama tournaments . . . the list goes on and on. But the challenge that the fledgling Taylor High School faced in the 81-82 school year, the object of the game, involved every student, team, club, department, administrator and teacher — the challenge of becoming a complete four-year school.

While other schools safely followed and established game plan patterned on years of experience, Taylor stepped forward in every area to add direction and shape to a fresh new game. Possibly the most critical year in the development of Taylor, 81-82 brought forth a surge of growth and improvement in all departments, academic courses, and class activities.

From the word "go," Taylor had the game licked. The first graduating class, the class of 82, skillfully led the other classes around the gameboard with pride and outstanding leadership. As the first senior class, these students had a most important task to face — that of establishing traditions in a school where none existed. This responsibility was accepted with sincere concern as seniors realized that they were settling precedents which would determine the future of all graduating classes, not just the class of '82.

These students played an essential role in encouraging school spirit at Taylor. In any school underclassmen tend to pattern their behavior after that of older students. Realizing this, seniors succeeded in promoting positive outlooks on school activities, thus improving school spirit. They were aided in this task by the coming of age of the athletic department as all varsity teams were able to face their seasons with the important element of physical maturity which had been lacking in previous years.

Senior year was thrilling for the class of '82 as students began having graduation portraits made, ordering announcements, and becoming increasingly concerned with class ranks and scholastic honors. Honor students studied industriously and tension built as everyone wondered who would be the first valedictorian.

Little things highlighted the year for the first seniors. Students shivered as the first panoramic picture was taken. Seniors excitedly parked their cars on territory off-limits to everyone else — the senior parking area.

Seniors Set Pace

"Breaking Through in '82" T-shirts appeared early in the year and students puzzled over the meaning of a few "OZMOTIC Senior" T-shirts as well. Students planned beginning in September for the first Senior Prom. Excitement increased as May 1, the prom date, approached and conversations of formals, tuxedos, and flowers were heard throughout the senior hall.

As the year came to a close and graduation loomed near, seniors grew increasingly apprehensive about their futures and slightly sentimental about the past. May 21, graduation day, came and went in a flurry of excitement, tears, congratualtions and parties culminating symbolically in the first graduation ceremony held at the new Katy ISD football stadium.

In the footsteps of the senior class, the C!ass of '83 struggled to do their part in making Taylor's first full-fledged school year a success. In November, all juniors gathered around small jewelry cases and talked among themselves, planning the settings and stones of that special high school symbol — the senior ring. February was a month of great anticipation as students waited for their rings to arrive.

Juniors followed closely on the heels of seniors in the game of academics as well. Twenty-six juniors were named to National Honor Society and many bleary-eyed ones were noticed dragging to classes on the day that American history research papers, a task which "honors" only juniors, came due. Juniors attentively observed every move the senior class made, knowing that their actions determined for the most part the course of events for the class of '83.

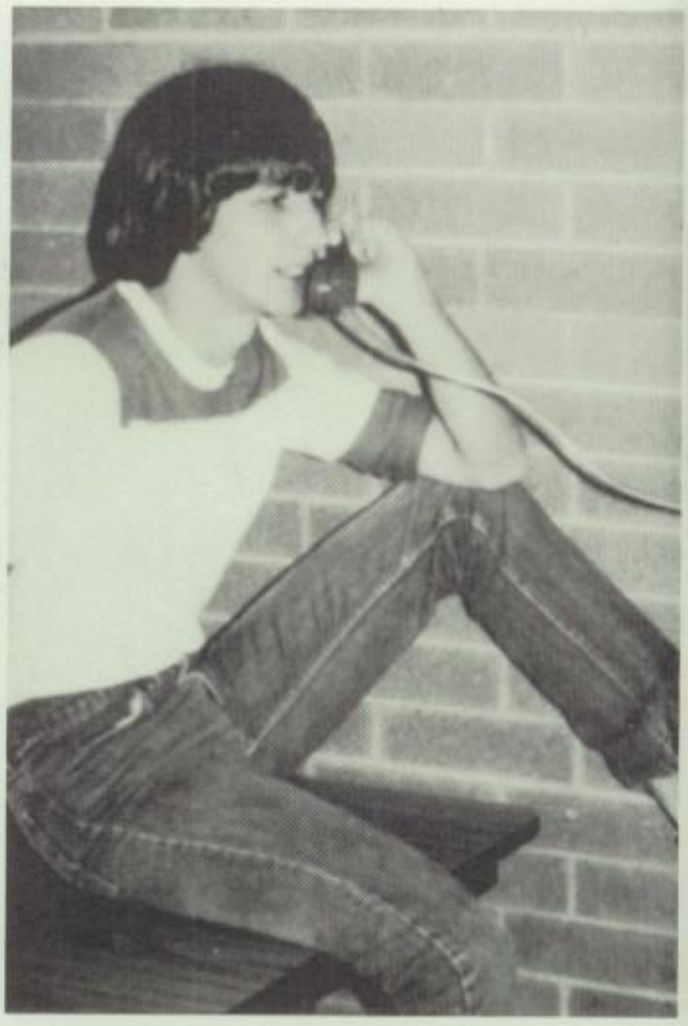
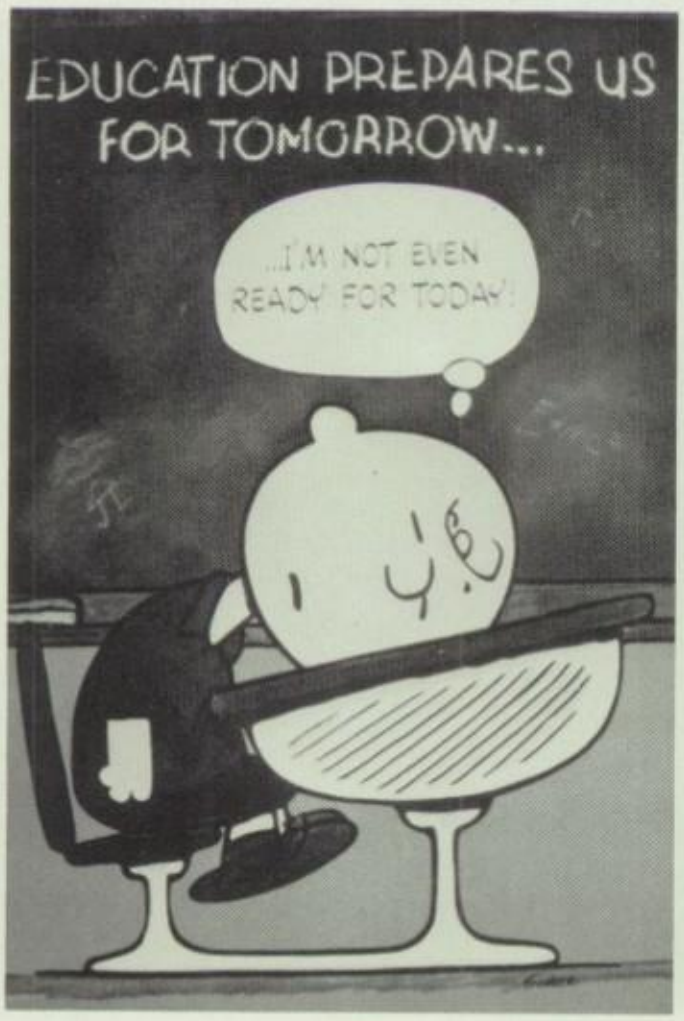
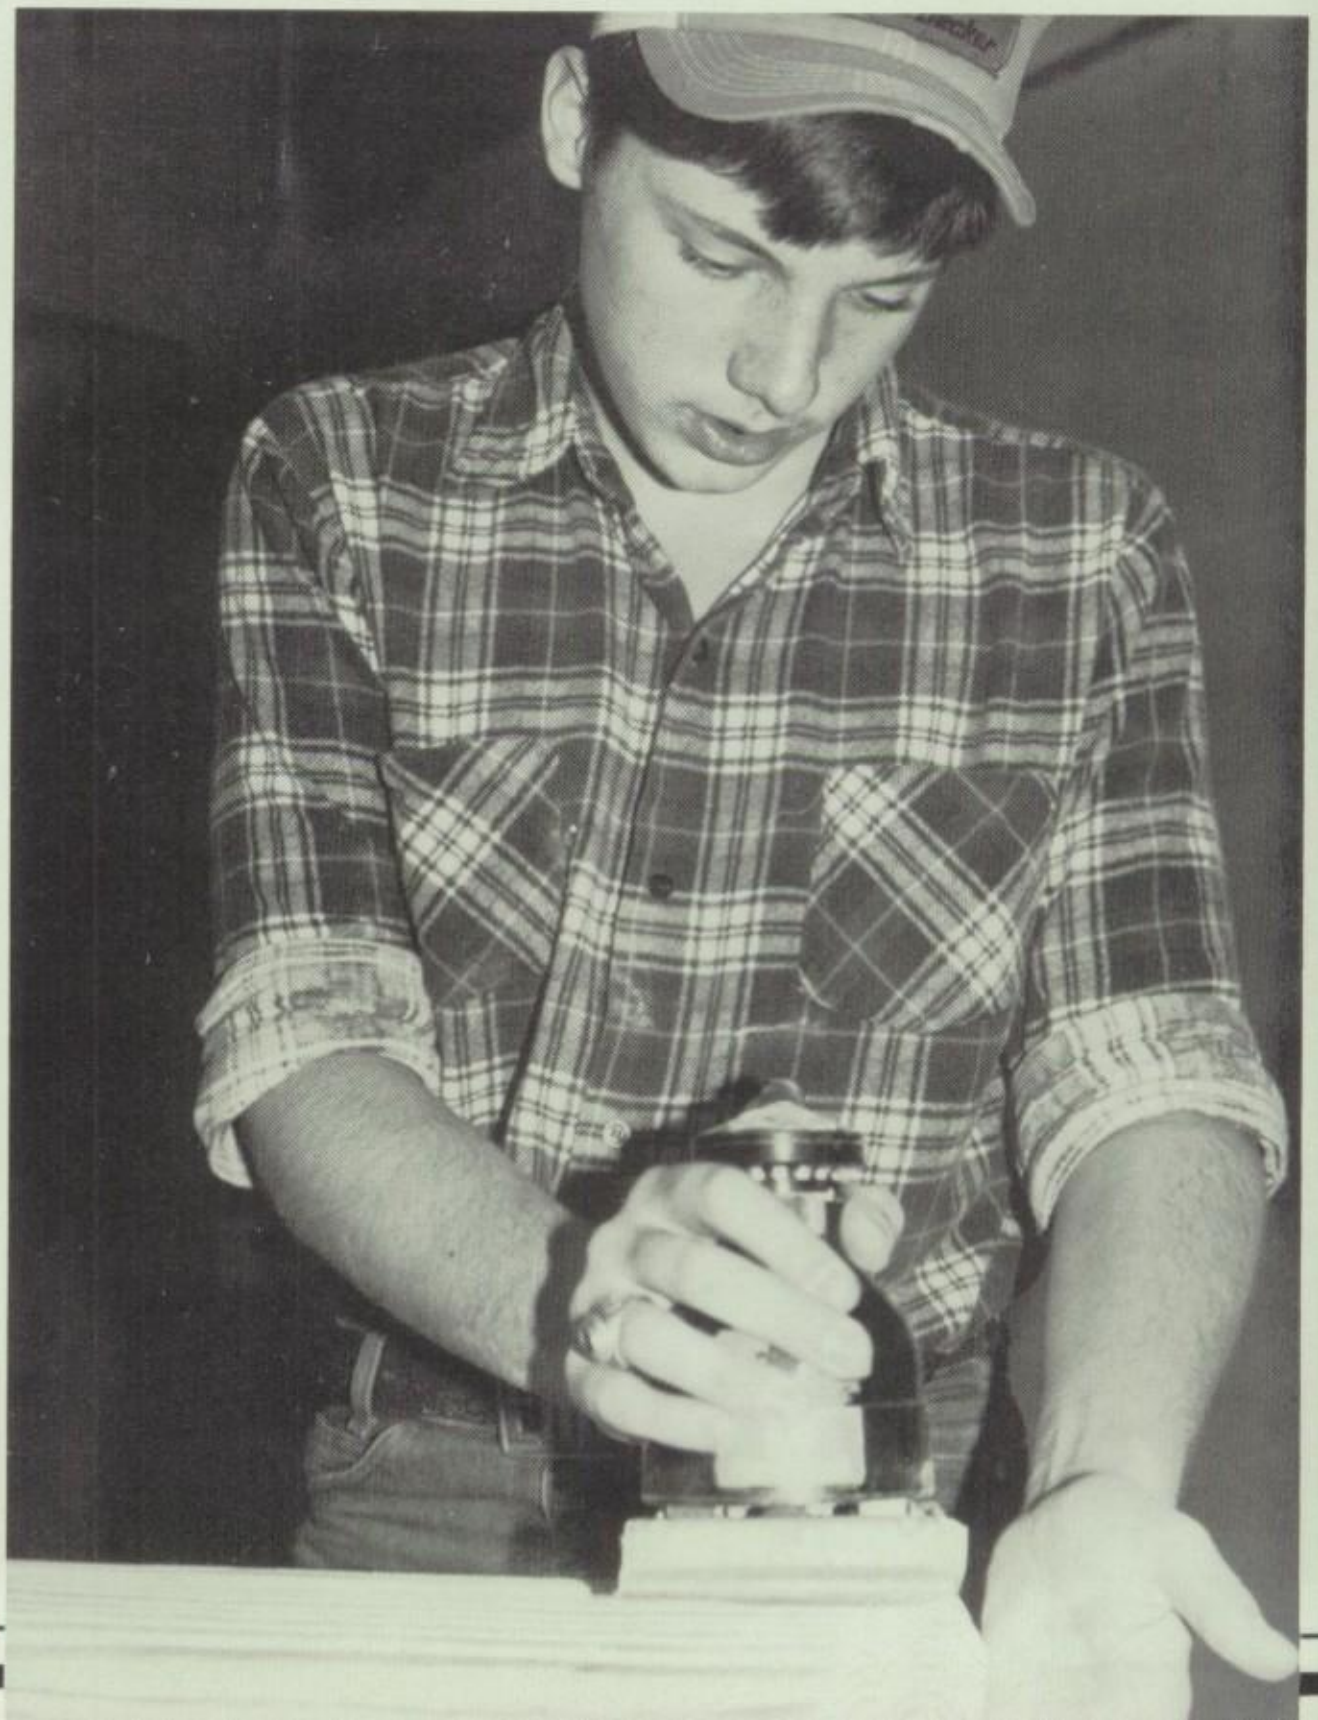
Not to be left out, the sophomores (class of '84) and the freshmen (class of '85) advanced toward the completion of their game plan. Both classes showed leadership potential, dedication, and enthusiasm — all of which gave promise of Taylor's having graduating classes capable of playing the game and winning for several years to come. Not content to sit back and wait until their junior year to earn money, both classes launched a series of successful projects including magazine sales, candy sales, T-shirt sales, and sponsoring dances.

The year was also a whole new game in the area of school spirit and pride. A marked increase in enthusiasm and participation was observed as more students attended dances, sports events, and club and class activities. Students and faculty alike were delighted when the first optional attendance pep rally was held and almost no difference in the number of students present could be observed.





EDUCATION PREPARES US FOR TOMORROW...
...I'M NOT EVEN READY FOR TODAY!



Growth Affects Taylor

A big factor in the growth of school spirit was the increased enrollment as 1,551 students attended Taylor, 544 more than in 80-81. But enrollment couldn't take full credit. Most of the credit was due to the many organizations which matured with the addition of a senior class, fostering pride and participation among students. New organizations such as AFS, Newcomers Club and Junior Achievement flourished, adding a whole new dimension to the game. More established organizations were more active than ever. For the first time, the entire fine arts department combined its efforts to produce "Oklahoma," an effort in which everyone at Taylor could take pride. Such cooperation allowed groups to reach out and involve more students than ever before.

Learning a new game takes time. Taylor began learning the rules and "walking" through the game plan in 81-82. Rules had to be formulated to suit the players, making the year one of challenge and change. The players will change and the rules will be modified, but the game plan completed for the first time in 1982 will serve well as a guide for the future.

District Meeting Highlights

Student Council is an organization which is well respected in our school. With its help the students and faculty have a chance to be more united. One of the biggest honors for the Student Council was hosting the District 7 meeting. For months members worked hard organizing and trying to make this meeting a success. On October 3, 700 active students from student councils all over the district participated in the laughter and learning of this creative meeting.

Other events that Student Council sponsored are activities such as the Camphell movie which was held after the Christmas vacation. Candy cane sales added extra Christmas spirit around school. Student Council made an effort to acknowledge each and every teacher by having a teacher appreciation breakfast before school. Throughout the year, bake sales and other money making projects were held. Proceeds purchased gifts to the school.

The leadership of Council seniors will be missed greatly since these students led the Council since their sophomore years, building one of the most respected Councils in District 7.

German Club had an active year involving not only academic activities but entertaining ones as well. The highlight of the year was the Foreign Language Banquet in December; all three language clubs worked together to pull off a night filled with food and fun. Members enjoyed a trip to the Summit for a Rockets game in late January. Continuing throughout the year were practice sessions of the oom-pah band and German folk dance group. The club also participated in several competitions in February and two in March. Members of the club enjoyed being part of this active group in 81-82.

1982 was an active year for the French Club. There were several out-of-school activities the club participated in this year. Members went to two different restaurants. "La Lorraine" and "Saint Michel." Around Christmastime the French Club participated along with the German and Spanish clubs in the Foreign Language Banquet.

The last week in April the French Club, along with the other foreign language clubs enjoyed a "food week." During this week each foreign language class brought food native to their respective countries for everyone in that period to enjoy. Also, throughout the year the French Club played several soccer games against the Spanish and German clubs. The club also enjoyed participating in several competitions.

The Well Respected

The National Honor Society at Taylor High School is a very active group of select students. The year was a very productive one and will set paths for outstanding honor societies of the future. NHS had twenty-eight members, sponsored by Mrs. Shirley Rosson and Mrs. JoAnn Lawson. Their first activity for the year was attending a fall convention sponsored by the Mid-Coast Association of National Honor Societies at Celanese Park in Bay City, Texas, on October 20, 1981. National Honor Society held a dance on October 17. Music was provided by Best Disco. Eleven seniors and twenty-six juniors were tapped as new members on February 4, 1982. A formal induction was held on February 18 in the commons. Superintendent Gordon Brown was the speaker at this induction. National Honor Society also sponsored a basketball game between the coaches and senior boys on April 28, 1982. The event proved to be great fun. In order to make these outstanding students stand out at graduation, the National Honor Society purchased white silk collars with the NHS insignia for seniors to wear with their caps and gowns on graduation night.

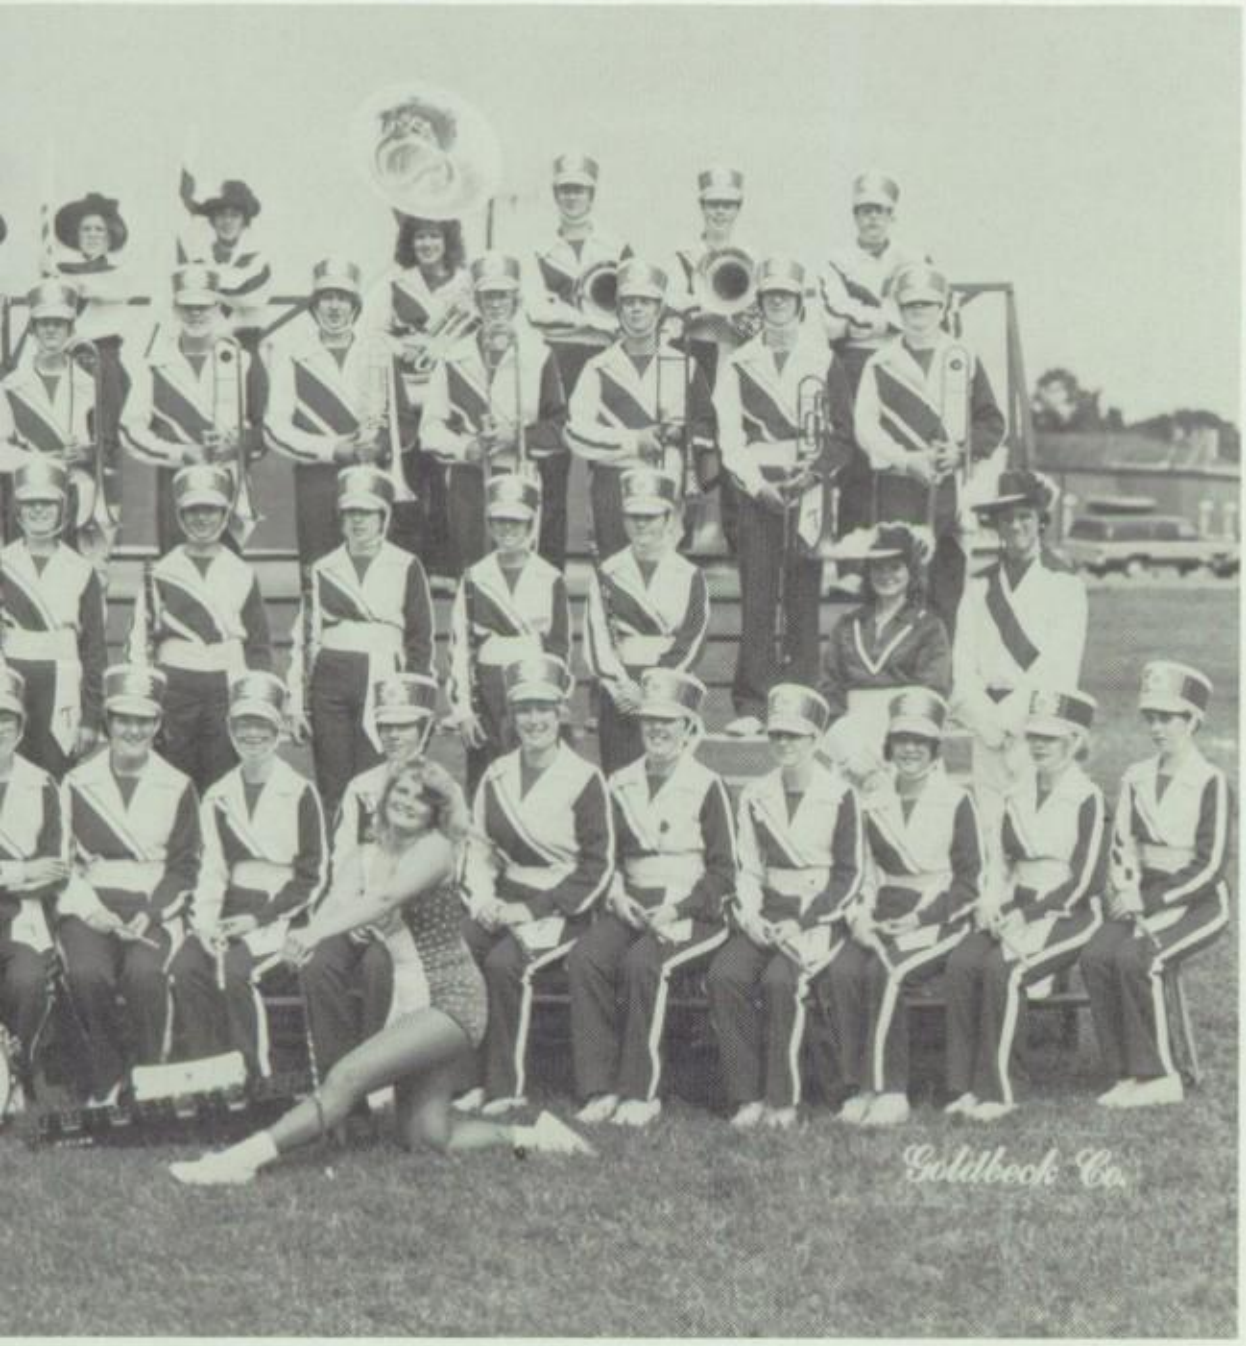
6. The band members entertain at halftime.

All Around



Good entertainment, like a gourmet meal, requires time and patience to prepare. Both of these qualities were seen as dedicated band members patiently practiced every day before and after school.

"The band's halftime performances were outstanding and very representative this year," remarked Bill Quillen, band director. Led by drum majors Linda Liston and Hal Swetnam, the band performed with the twirlers during half time at varsity football games.

Besides performing well at games the band also excelled in marching competition. They placed first in a marching contest at Blinn Junior College and received a first division rating at UIL.

Knives, hoops, ribbons, and flags were included in twirling routines this year, according to head twirler, Stacy Goodwin. As group leader, Goodwin composes the routines and instructs other twirlers. The three-girl group practiced a minimum of four hours a day during football season. Making up the rest of the twirling team were Lori Biggs and Natalie Hawthorne.

Making a Memory

Nancy Fordham, senior, gives an impression of a yearbook editor going mad.

"Our deadline CAN'T be tomorrow! Call our publishing company representative and beg him for an extra day. What do you mean, your pages aren't finished? They've got to be finished today!"

These are the types of things one was likely to hear while walking by room 133 anywhere near a deadline. The panic was always there as staffers hurried to finish last minute details or find the one picture that always managed to turn up missing. In spite of the frenzy, deadlines were met and the Stampede staff could sigh in momentary relief.

The 81-82 Stampede staff worked long and hard to produce a yearbook that would hopefully capture many memories for students to treasure. Editor Nancy Fordham spent many late nights and weekend hours copy-editing pages in hopes of minimizing errors. Other staff members hurried in at odd times during holidays and weekends to finish odds and ends in time to ship the copy.

Those who had been on staff in previous years experienced some changes and learned many new things as the first full color pages were produced. Changes in format came as well as students learned new skills at workshops and adjusted to the leadership of a new adviser, Ms. Karen Thompson.

To raise money they sold "I'm a Taylor Mustang" caps. They plan to have a hospitality booth to welcome new students in the fall.

Stand by Your Mustang

In October, 1980, Athletic Booster Club presented Taylor High School with a mascot, Colonel Jet. To care for this spirit-promoting mascot there had to be a special group of people. These people are the Mustang Honor Guard, a newly organized club. Mr. Kline, sponsor, describes the club as "different." Along with other activities, the guards are responsible for the care of the mascot. They must clean it and keep it functioning throughout the year. They are also responsible for the safe transportation of the mascot to many athletic events.

It is considered an honor to be a guard. Students must have good grades and show responsibiltiy. They are chosen by a student-teacher committee who selects students who apply for this prestigious position.

pirit, Drive and Ability

Ready . . . Okay!!! The 1981-82 cheerleaders had a very enthusiastic year. The kick-off dance, car washes, bake sales, and holding cheerleading clinics were only some of the money making projects that they held. The girls attended cheerleading camp at SMU during the summer perfecting each cheer, jump and technique. Receiving three spirit sticks and all blue ribbons, the cheerleaders achieved many outstanding pointers for the coming 81-82 year. This year was the last year for the 5 returning senior cheerleaders who had been on the Taylor squad since their sophomore year. Practicing many hours after school, painting signs, planning pep rallies and holding money making projects were all part of the work and fun of the year. "It's a great feeling to know that you're what keeps the spirit going," said one of the cheerleaders. It was an excellent year for the girls and for all the many hours put in by them they received in return good times, fond memories and life long friendships.

They've Got Their

Taylor High School Fine Arts Department presented the musical Oklahoma Jan. 29 and 30, in the school commons at 7:30 p.m.

"Oklahoma is special to many people because of its songs," Theater Arts Director Rachel Mattox says. Ones such as "Oh What A Beautiful Morning" and "People Will Say We're In Love" were featured in the all-student production.

The classic American musical is based on the play Green Grow The Lilacs by Lynn Riggs. The play is about a cowboy, Curly (senior Hal Swetnam), who is in love with a girl named Laurey (junior Sheri McNeely). "We have a classic good guys/bad guys plot," Mattox says.

Forty-four others were in the cast itself, while twenty to thirty more were working behind the scenes. Mattox estimates that over 100 people were involved in the production.

"We're really excited about getting to do a musical here — having the talent to do it and having all of the departments involved," she said.

"This is hard work, but it also produces a product the students will enjoy and be proud of," Land said. Part of the work is practice. Because the play is 50-70 per cent singing, much of the actor's time is used in learning the songs. Subordinate singers practiced one hour a day, and lead singers practiced two hours a day. According to Land, the rehearsals took up so much time that she usually didn't get home until 10:00 p.m.

"A production such as this one requires a lot of understanding from parents and other faculty members," Mattox said. "But it's worth it in the end!"

Everyone was in fear of being called a witch. You can see that fear in the faces of Sara Brown, senior, and Nan Crawford, junior.

On With the Show

The Thespians, an active group in our school, enjoyed many activities throughout the year. Most members of the drama club participated in plays presented this year. The club was successful in UIL competitions. Several parties to celebrate opening nights were enjoyed by the Thespians. They also had a Spring Banquet where everyone dressed up in costumes. All of the members were pleased with the year and are excited about the year to come.

1. The Members of the Thespian Club and the apprentices take a vote on whether or not to hold a spring banquet. The final decision was in favor of the banquet.

The Speech Department had many changes this year. It was the first year for a separate speech department and also the first year that Taylor has had a National Forensic League. They affiliated with N.F.L. in September of 1980, became the fifth largest affiliate in the nation in March, and chartered in April. The Taylor chapter has 70 members.

They went to two workshops, seventeen speech tournaments, festivals and scrimmages. They also hosted a junior high speech tournament which 29 junior high schools attended. Their many awards included three third place sweepstakes, one second place sweepstakes, and two first place sweepstakes. Individuals brought home ninety-seven medals, plaques, and trophies. K. J. Wild placed first in conference AAAA State UIL Persuasive Speaking and Marsha Kern qualified for the Texas Forensic Association's State meet. Other outstanding awards were Outstanding N.F.L. member 1981-82 — K. J. Wild, Outstanding N.F.L. novice Member — Marsha Kern, and Outstanding N.F.L. speaker — Keith Evans. Jeanie Madden also got an award for Oral Interpreter, and Mike Jordan got an award for debate.

2. Nancy Fordham, senior, shows the product of her hard work by qualifying as a state finalist in VOE Competition.

The Taylor High School Office Education Association, known as OEA, is comprised of 28 hard-working girls who are enrolled in the Vocational Office Education program. The club was off to a flying start in September as officers were installed and the OEA held its very first meeting of the school year.

Since OEA is a co-curricular club, much class time was spent listening to guest speakers. One speaker, Mr. Frank Abagnale, had the pleasure of speaking to members of the entire school, as the OEA hosted his visit. Other guests ranged from bankers to modeling representatives. Speakers from the telephone company helped improve members' phone techniques, while speakers such as Mr. Sam Saenz improved their attitudes towards themselves. Finally, representatives from business schools gave the students a chance to look at their futures.

Amidst the excitement, OEA members found time to conduct fund-raising projects, both for their own needs and the needs of others. With a portion of the money raised, students journeyed to Memorial Ci Hospital in order to give dolls to th children. The remainder of clu funds were used on various dinne throughout the year, including th 1st annual CO-OP Employer Ba quet which was held at La Hacienc De Los Morales. This banquet wa provided as a token of gratitude f all of the employers of the CO-O students. The lab students were n forgotten, however. These studen held their own awards' dinner a fe days later at Birra Poretti's.

In between all of the fun an leisure time, much work was done i preparation for Regional Compet tion. In reward for their efforts, thre girls received awards. V.O.C.C.T.

Vocational Office Careers Club of Texas (V.O.C.C.T.) teaches students skills to operate duplicating machines, which enables them to become proficient in layout, design, and printing techniques. Students in V.O.C.C.T. did on-the-job training at different print shops during the year. They earned money by selling memo pads, Rubik's cube key chains and printing projects. V.O.C.C.T. went to a local printing contest. Kelly Krolcyzk won third place on the offset press, Karen Grubbs won first place on the fluid duplicator, and Shonna Heilman received an honorable mention award for her entry on the offset press. Regional competition was held at Corpus and State was held at Austin.

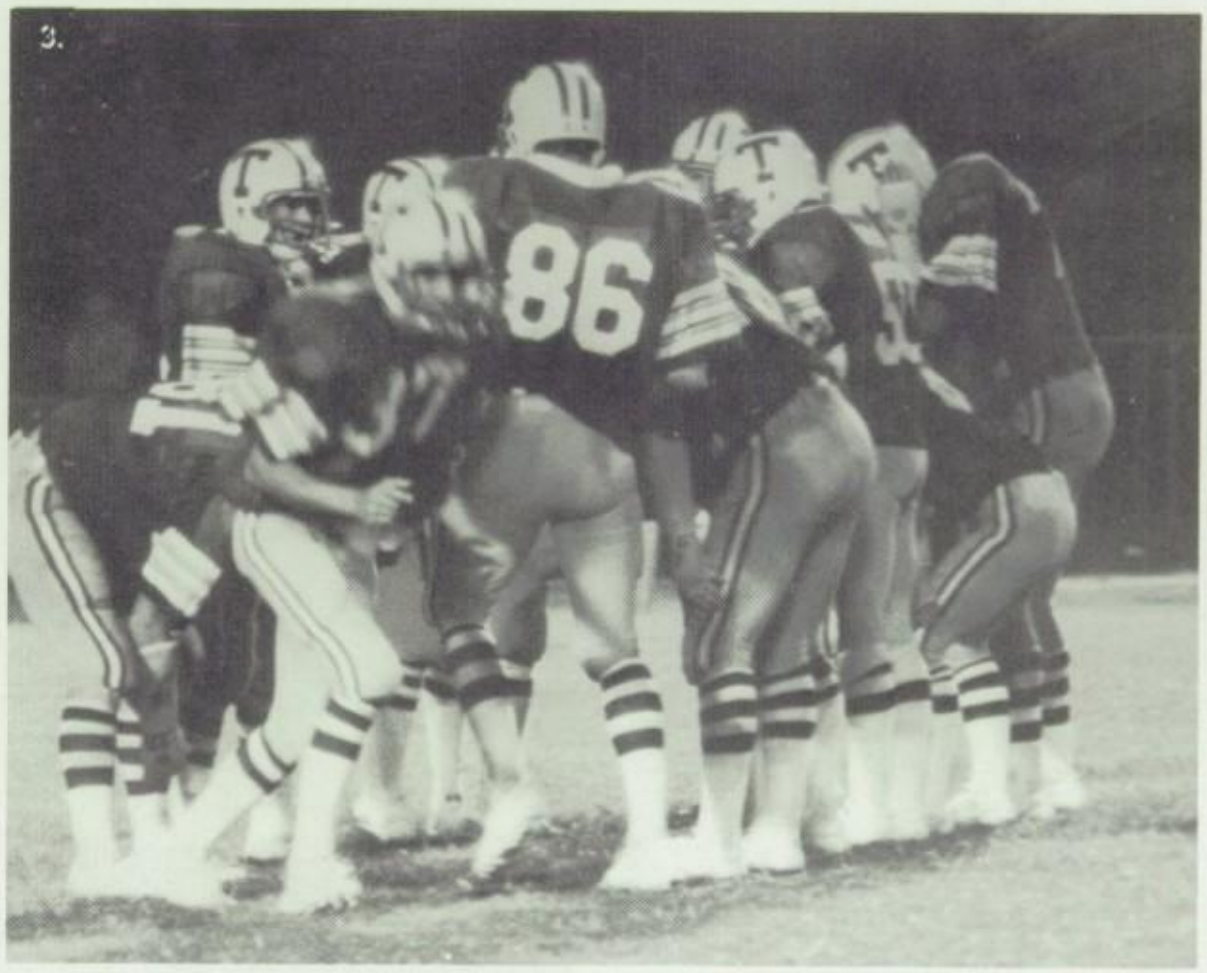
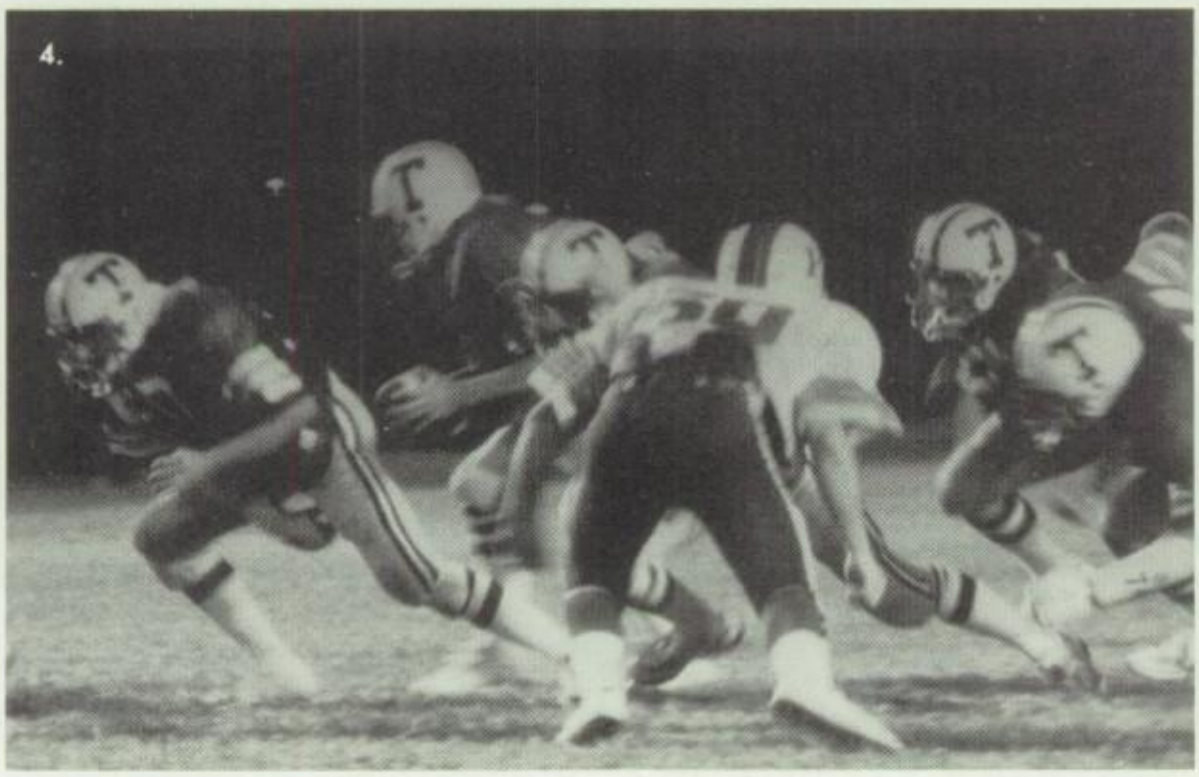
Team members huddle as quarterback Steve Atkinson calls a play.





The Taylor Varsity Mustangs' 1981-82 football season was a good one as the blue and white got off to the strongest start in THS history. They won three straight games. All of the games proved to be enjoyable and exciting, but credit must be given to the Homecoming game for being the most breathtaking. In the last minute of the game Claude Smith caught a pass that would have won the game if the referee had not called it incomplete. Even though the Mustangs did not rank very high compared to the other schools in their division, they showed great improvement and promise for the years to come. MORE POWER TO YA' MUSTANGS!!!

A Side W

There is a side of many Taylor students that few people ever see. They find enjoyment by helping others within their community in their spare time.

Quite a few students helped out at the Special Olympics at the Katy High School track. They helped by working with the fun and games and were rewarded with a warm smile or a tender hug.

Another group that helps year round are the Junior Volunteers at Memorial City General Hospital. There are about 15 dedicated Volunteers who provide this special service to their community.

Whether helping out to gain job experience or personal satisfaction, their deeds mean a great deal to others.

The cheerleaders held their traditional Football Kick-off dance Sept. 5. It was a fantastic way to start off the new year and the football season. The special guest was K-Disc who supplied the music. The cheerleaders put a lot of time and effort into the dance and it all paid off when they cleared close to $700. Mrs. Robin Sammons, sponsor for the cheerleaders, said, "It was a real big success. There were a lot of students there."

National Honor Society held its first high school dance for the 1981-82 school year Oct. 17. NHS hosted the dance with music by Rick Brooks from Best Disco. Rick played records of all types of modern day music to make the dance a success. Frank Olmsted, a sophomore who attended the dance, said, "The dance really turned out great. I enjoyed it." Another student, Doug Dorman, who also attended the dance, said, "The dance turned out pretty good and there were a lot of people who showed up for a change." There were even comments from students who volunteered to help at the dance such as Angela Shaeffer who helped serve cold cokes. She said, "The dance was a tremendous success. I really liked it even though I had to serve drinks."

The senior class held its Christmas dance Dec. 12. Instead of raising money, they collected canned goods to give to the needy. In order to get the canned goods, each class selected a Mr. and Miss St. Nick. The winners were seniors Dan Devane and Nielah Ghonima who collected over 200 cans from the Senior class. Their guest was Kirk Patrick from 98 FM KFMK; but Santa really stole the show. Much preparation went into this dance by all of the senior class officers and the senior class sponsors, Mrs. Robin Sammons and Mrs. Virginia Laird.

The Pacesetters held a Basketball Finale dance Esturday Feb. 6. A basketball King and Queen were announced after those attending the dance had voted upon who they wanted. The new King and Queen are sophomore Bob McNamara and sophomore Nicole Duarte. The Pacesetters performed a jazz routine to "My Lips Are Sealed" by the GO GO's. The profit made from the dance is going toward getting new props and costumes.

4. Steph Riley, Kim Williams, Cathy Maywald, and Lesley Woodson, juniors, cheer and show their Mustang spirit at the pep rally.

Getting in the Spirit of Things

The Halloween pep rally was held in Gym II on Oct. 30. Some of the students were really creative and made some fantastic costumes. Most consisted of just things that everyone could find around the house, yet there were a few who rented costumes. Some examples of the costumes were a box of crayons and a stop sign, along with your average every day group of witches.

During the pep rally, one witch, senior Barry Barentine, had a little fun making his "brew" with Coach David Youngblood and Coach Charlie Scott. The ingredients to this brew, which was poured over both coaches' heads, consisted of two eggs, B-B-Q sauce, and just about anything else that the could find. "It was a real mess," he said. He made no comment when asked how they talked him into doing it.

Along with everything else that happened at the pep rally, Coach Diane Howell announced that the girls' cross country team was headed for state competition. Later, the girls finished 6th in state.

Coach Charlie Scott seems to have gotten a little carried away with his cooking at the Halloween pep rally.
Senior Barry Barentine, who played the wicked witch at the Halloween pep rally, made the brew that was thrown on Coach Charlie Scott and Coach David Youngblood.

4. Mrs. Sandy Ohmstede enjoys the task of distributing roses to many lucky girls.
5. Mrs. Seidl and Mrs. Pope tend to their duties as more and more flowers are delivered to for lucky sweethearts.
6. Mrs. Nancy Tam and Mrs. Sandy Ohmstede sort out the flowers that came flowing in to the office in a steady stream on Feb. 12.

Feb. 14, Valentine's Day, is a very special day when many things begin to happen. Every year, each girl is given a paper heart to pin on for the Mr. Irresistible contest. She must try to keep from talking to any guy no matter how hard he tries to get her to talk. By the end of the day, only a few of the girls still had their hearts. The idea behind this is that the guy with the most hearts per grade level is chosen Mr. Irresistible. The winners of this year's contest were Mason Granade for the senior class, Pat McLemore for the junior class, Peter Martin for the sophomore class, and Brain Archer for the freshman class.

Along with the Mr. Irresistible contest, the Journalism Department was taking Valentine's Day pictures in the Commons Feb. 8 and 9 for $3. You could get your picture taken alone or with your sweetie or with a group of friends.

As usual, by lunch time the entire cafeteria looked as if it was the back of a florist's shop. On every table roses and other assorted flowers could be seen as the guys remembered their sweethearts on Valentine's Day.

Feb. 13 the sophomore class sponsored the 2nd Annual Valentine's Day Dance. At the dance each class selected a Valentine Sweetheart. The winners of this year's competit'on were Leigh Gilbreith for the freshmen, Kim Wagenfuer for the sophomores, Gayle McAteer for the juniors, and Sherie Buchanan for the seniors.

A beautiful sight, the back end of a school bus, signifies the end of the school week and the onslaught of . . . THE WEEKEND.
Seniors Bev Nalley and Robin Robertson are caught up in a case of "The Mondays" as they conduct a Press Club meeting.
Friday afternoon at 2:40 — Who needs to say more?
And so begins another Monday morning.

. . . AND THE WEEKEND MEANS PARTY

Merriam Webster Dictionary defines the word Friday as:

Friday / fri'dē n: the sixth day of the week.

For some it may be just that — the sixth day of the week. How dull! For others, Friday may just be another day. How boring! But for the average Taylor student, the word Friday is synonymous with pep rallies, shortened classes, football games and few tests. And of course, the magic word — parties!!! The average Taylor student does love to party. Give him a parking lot — he'll party in it. Show him a back lot or an empty field — he'll party in it; best of all, give him a house full of friends, a good stereo and no curfew — he'll party till he can't party any more.

Taylor students could be seen at various locations on Friday nights. Some people hung out in the Safeway parking lot or in the back of Nottingham Country. Others could be seen cruising up and down Westheimer or parked in one of the many lots lining the busy street. Some of the older students haunted the local rock-and-roll clubs like Cardi's and the Rocksy, but the younger crowd could be seen there too! And of course, someone could always be counted on to have a party almost every weekend. That's when the real fun began. Imagine the whole varsity football team, a large number of drill team members and half the student body crammed into one medium sized house. Add one loud stereo blasting AC/DC. You've got your typical THS Friday night gathering.

Come Saturday morning, most students burrowed deep under their pillows, avoiding sunlight, breakfast, and conversation. After all, this is the weekend! They'd emerge about five in the afternoon, take a shower and head out the door yelling, ". . . Mom, I'll be home at one or so . . ."

. . . With Liberty and

Friday, April 23, the student body was honored to have Congressman Bill Archer; Kerry Mazock, chairman of the Memorial Exchange Club; Randy Jinks, an officer at the Texas Commerce Bank in Katy; and a host of others visiting our school. These men all had a reason for being here — to present a dedication of the Freedom Shrine. The assembly began with the Flag Ceremony performed by the Harris County Honor Guard. This was followed by the recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance and the singing of God Bless America by Mrs. Gail Land and junior Sheri McNeely.

The Freedom Shrine was developed in Educational Headquarters and it was officially adopted by the National Exchange Club in a resolution passed at the 31st Annual Convention in 1949. The Freedom Shrine was inspired by the Freedom Train, which toured the nation in 1947 with an exhibit of historical American documents. It consists of 28 documents including The Mayflower Compact, the Declaration of Independence, Washington's Farewell Address and the Instrument of Surrender in the Pacific, World War II.

The dedication of the Freedom Shrine was a very memorable event — an honor of which Taylor students should be proud.

"Let's go to the beach," cries someone in the background and everyone is off and running to the beach. The day is warm and the sun is hot, and everyone is ready for a day of sun and sand.

Many Taylor students enjoy going to the beach as much as possible once the weather becomes warmer, especially the day after the prom.

There are many beaches to go to in Galveston, such as West Beach, East Beach, or even Jamaica Beach. While on the beach you can see all your friends, go surfing (if there are waves), ride horses, or just simply lay out.

As you can see, the beach is a second "home" to many Taylor students.

Testing, Testing

"Go to second period class first on Wednesday. No first period classes will be held on that day. Then report immediately to your testing room at 8:19," teachers instructed their students as March 30 and 31 approached.

These two days were set aside for SRA achievement tests for underclassmen. Test results will measure students' ability to apply skills and knowledge learned in school to practical real life situations. Areas covered by students are mostly those they will encounter as adults: employment, consumer information, government and law. The tests are given each year from first grade until student's junior year in high school.

Students had mixed feelings about the tests. Some thought the tests were easy, but most found it was painfully necessary to think while doing the tests. Many students said they found the tests to be "boring and only good for putting you to sleep." Junior Jeff Guidice said he found the tests to be a learning experience. "At least I learned what a number 2 pencil is used for," was his comment.

Some students found the testing a welcome break from their classes. "I don't have to go to classes and the tests are easier than my research paper in English," commented Tommy Grant, junior.

Others were less enthusiastic. "I think they're a total pain!" remarked Marty Gouge, junior. "I get tired of circling all those little dots."

Teachers used the quiet testing time grading papers as they monitored students taking the tests. "I'm catching up on all my grading; but right now I'm exhausted from just sitting," said Diane Jenkins, business teacher. "They ought to give these tests at least once month," said teacher Charlie Pete son. "It gives me a chance to catc up." Teachers who weren't as signed as monitors watched th clock to relieve other teachers fo occasional 15 minute breaks.

There were other advantages t the testing. During breaks junio class candy sales soared a students munched out on Kracke Reeses' and Almond bars, accor ding to junior class sponsor Mrs Gladys Tynes.

While underclassmen tested seniors played. Although involved i testing for the Army for half of a da Tuesday, Field day activities were scheduled for all day Wednesday.

Carol Burton expressed the opi nion of many underclassmen. "The tests are really boring but it's nice not to have much homework for a while, but I bet the seniors have more fun than we do."

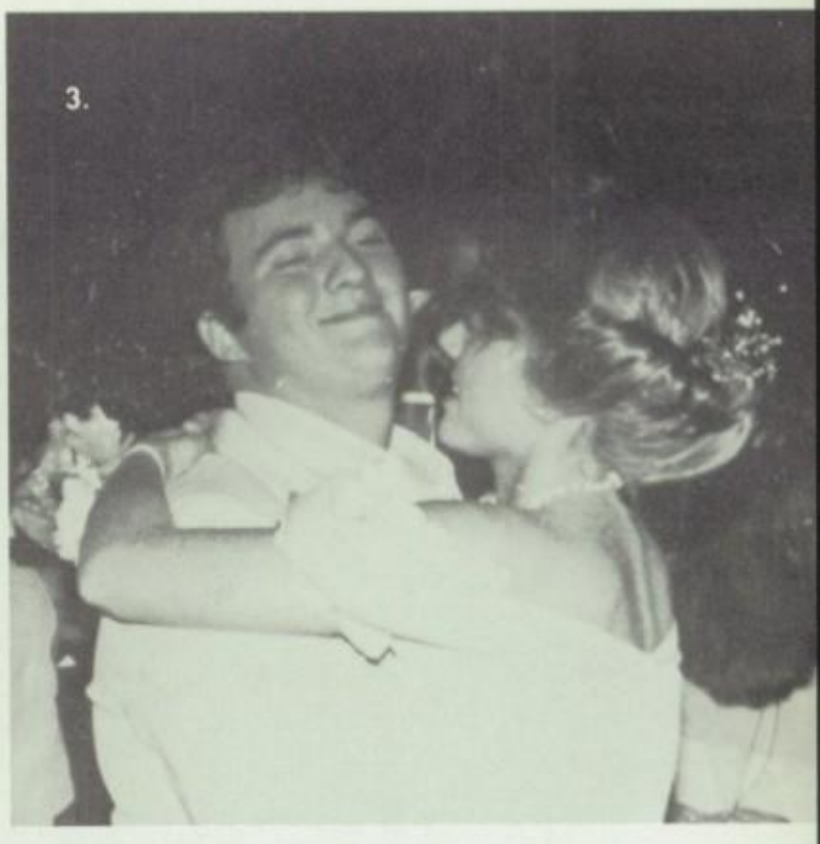
The Best of Times



n May 1, the first graduating class James E. Taylor High School brated their first prom. It was given ne luxurious Emerald Ballroom at Shamrock Hilton Hotel downtown.

any of the seniors, along with their es spent a few hours getting ready the prom. After they were ready both parents had taken enough ures, they were ready to leave for er and then the prom. Many went uch places as Tony's, Vargo's and riel's.

fter a luscious dinner which was emely expensive also, seniors ar- d at the prom. As they entered the room, they could see a large crowd ellow classmates. At the door they e greeted by Mr. McMeans and Mr. Mrs. Atkinson.

ight after walking in the door ors were rushed over to have pic- s taken. Once all the initial rush was over, the good times began. In the ballroom one could sit and converse with friends. However, when the band, the Voices, began to play everyone was up and dancing.

When the prom ended at about 1 a.m., many seniors headed for champagne breakfasts and then to the beach. But what it all comes down to is that the first prom was a total success.

1. Senior Kim Daniels and her date junior Maury Hammond, along with senior Mark Thomas and sophomore Anita Alberger, enjoy watching everyone at the prom.
2. Senior Marion Magill and sophomore Steve Atkinson eye all the food available while Steve's parents look on.
3. Rbert Aultman seems to enjoy slow dancing with his date.
4. Billy Wright, junior, enjoys dancing to the beat of the Voices at the prom.
5. The dance floor was the most crowded place at the prom.
6. Seniors Barry Barentine, Dan Devane, and Steve Bertamini pose for a picture before entering the prom.
7. It seems as if senior Sarah Brown has lost her date amidst the crowded dance floor.

May 21 was a day to remember. On this day, the first class of Taylor High School graduated.

Ceremonies were held at the new KISD stadium at 8 p.m. Attending the important ceremony were relatives, friends, and teachers of the seniors.

The ceremony began exactly at 8 p.m. although students had to be there at 7:15. At 8:00 seniors proudly marched across the field ready to graduate and move on to the real world. After seniors had taken their seats, valedictorian Susan Gilcrease and salutatorians Dan Cox and Anna Baranowski spoke.

Principal Garland McMeans presented awards and scholarships to many seniors after which Mr. Eule Pierce handed out diplomas.

As the ceremony ended, seniors gathered together for a final moment of reminiscing — then they were off to celebrate the event.

1. Senior Trudy Graves is overjoye receiving her diploma.
2. Senior Sean Douglass is surprised photographer at graduation.
3. Mr. McMeans, Mr. Taylor, Superinter Gordon Brown and Euel Pierce look the ceremony.

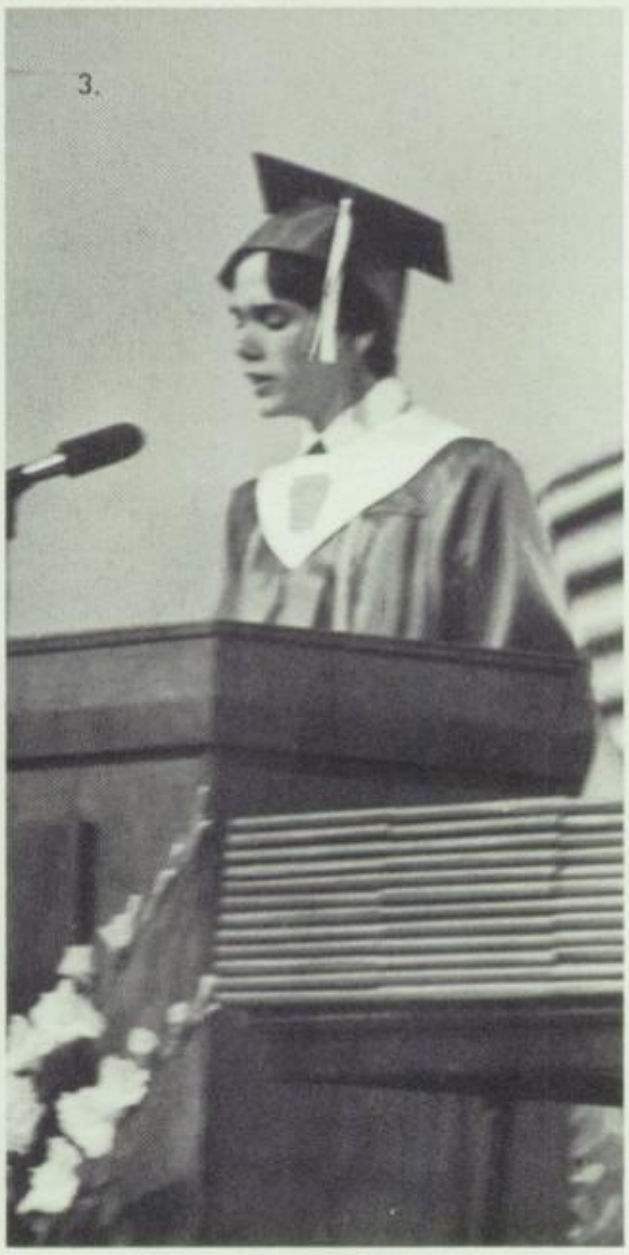
Valedictorian

"After slipping and falling down the stairs at school, I just watched people walk by and laugh. No, they didn't stop and help," says Susan Gilcrease. When some people think of the school's valedictorian, their stereotyped opinion of the person is one of a walking encyclopedia. However, after talking with Susan, the stereotype is given a quick death. The anecdote above proves she's just as normal as anyone else. The only difference is Susan's 4.671 average, ranking highest in her class.

Susan's plans to Baylor on a scholarship. She was in honors classes all through high school and was an active member of the Ma Club, Science Club, Industrial Ar Pep Squad, Honor Society, a Student Training. Susan will be pre-med major and later go into c diovascular surgery.

Susan was voted Most Likely Succeed out of all the girls in t senior class and we wish her luck.



1. Seniors Dan Cox and Susan Gilcrease found unusual places to study at Taylor.
2. Anna Baronowski, senior, was the co-Salutatorian for the senior class.
3. Dan Cox was also Salutatorian for the senior class.

On March 31, the underclassmen ent a tedious day in SRA testing ile the senior class, starting a w tradition, spent a well deserved eak participating in the numerous tivities of Senior Fun Day.

"I liked watching everybody get about their tests, which are proaching, by having a good e," said Senior Chris O'Hara.

Most seniors enjoyed missing a y of school, a poll taken among r students revealed.

However, O'Hara said, "I hate ssing the opportunity to enhance education and future, although I a break will aid the last few eks of our high school career, Hi m!"

Humid weather did not dampen the seniors' spirit although it "made my hair frizzy and made me dirty," said senior Debbie Cockrell.

It also made Mason Grande, senior, "muddy, hot and sweaty." Seniors Gina Palmisano and Angela Schaffer agreed that "sun would have helped, but it hasn't affected the fun."

Some of the Fun Day activities were: football, water balloon toss, egg toss, orange pass, relay, wheelbarrow race, three legged race, frisbee, train, suitcase and Coke is it, and flour and mud related activities.

Another enjoyed activity was the changing of the signs on the bathrooms.

Students See Government in Action

"Where's all the snow?" screamed Texas Close-Up participants as they landed at the Washington National Airport in D.C.

Close-Up is a week long trip open to seniors designed to help them get a better understanding of the United States government and how it works. This year Mrs. Patty Cook, government teacher, sponsored eighteen students on their trip to Washington, D.C. The week of February 7-13, 1982 proved to be a very exciting one. During the trip sponsors and students attended numerous seminars and workshops discussing current issues.

It was not all work and no play. Spare time activities included trips to the Smithsonian Museum, sitting in on congressional sessions, watching the changing of the guards in Arlington Cemetery and trying to figure out how to work the metro machines. To climax the exciting week a banquet was held to honor the participants and their sponsors. Music was provided by "Entertainment Plus" so the students could enjoy a long night full of music, dancing and newly formed friendships.

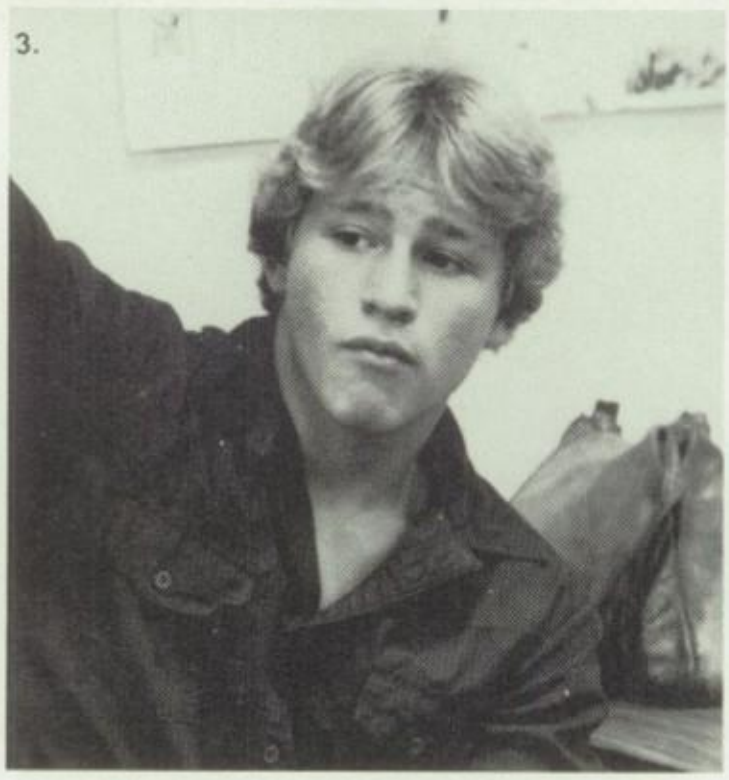
Senior Bobby Mohesini says, "Give me a break; I'm only working here for my prom."
Brian Schmitt and Andy Montgomery, seniors, take a break on a hectic day.

Being in the middle of fun ended up to be work. Astroworld was the home of numerous Taylor Seniors, during the month of October. Seniors worked two consecutive Saturdays doing anything from scrubbing moldy umbrellas to making chocolate shakes. The day started at 12:00 when the seniors and their sponsors met in the conference room and seniors were handed time cards and slips to get their uniforms. After waiting in the dressing room line students were handed outfits that they were expected to wear the whole day. These outfits included anything from shorts that tied at the legs to shirts with bow ties. After dressing, it was back to the conference room; there they divided into groups and were assigned their place of employment for the day. Taylor formed a large mob and off they headed to work. Some of the places worked were from La Hacienda to Hot Dog stands. The seniors held many positions during the day. Even though they worked hard and the jobs weren't too appealing, everyone has memories to share, of the fun and the misery that they went through. On one of the weekends girls spent four hours in the back of a store room sewing up stuffed animals. The money that the senior class of 1982 raised at Astroworld was used for their prom on May 1, 1982.



1. Seniors show their spirit by placing posters in the halls.

inally – an Upperclassman

Finally you made it, you're an upperclassman. It seems like it took forever. The fast-paced world of the junior is exhausting. Doing your first research paper terrifies you and taking the PSAT is even worse. Of course in between studying, you must find time to research various colleges, after all, applications should be going in soon. Despite all this work there are a few benefits. Perhaps you feel a special thrill the first day of school when you drive your new car into the parking lot of school, and felt it again when you ordered your class ring. You eagerly look forward to the junior class picnic hoping for a little bit of relaxation to reward your efforts. For the first time you are able to grab an underclassman and demand that he buy a candy bar to support the junior class. If you can stomach it, you smile sweetly and through gritted teeth ask nicely. Before you know it, the end of school arrives. You bid a tearful farewell to your senior friends and, as the tears dry, a feeling of enlightenment comes upon you — realizing that next year you're the senior.

We're The

To Prep or Not to Prep

Buffy, oh Buffy! Awesome. Icky or Ickypoo. Blow away. Dork or dorky. These are expressions used by "Preppies" and quite a few Taylor students.

"Preppy is stiff starched collars, shoes that "scrunch up" your toes, and little animals like stuck-on status symbols," said junior, Sidny Cook. Brian Parizot, junior, said, "Preppy is Polos, Izods, penny loafers (Bass of course), blazers and nylon belts". He continued, "Preppies are people who walk strangely and try to impress people. They're just people who have to go along with the crowd — they're a bunch of phonies."

The majority of students think that to be dressed preppy, you must be wearing Izod or Polo shirt and Bass loafers. If y must wear jeans, make them as dark possible and preferably designer, such Calvin Klein.

There are a few that believe preppy is r just clothes. Christie Moleski said, "Prep is an attitude. It's where you live, where y shop, where you go for Christmas vacatio and the way you talk." It seems that quite few people think that all preppies have unusual way of speaking. Could be. Look their dictionary some day!

Most people believe that preppy is pre normal in Taylor as well as anywhere els So come on out all you Closet Preps!

Sheri Sings Her Way to State

When one thinks of talent at Taylor High School then, undoubtedly, the voice of Sheri McNeely comes to mind.

This year, as a junior, Sheri sang her way to second place in the All-State Choir. She had previously won first at all-area, second at all-region, and seventh at all district.

Sheri also starred in this year's musical play, Oklahoma. Sheri played Laurie, the female lead, and for the first time she incorporated song with drama. "I'd never acted before and it was a lot of fun. I loved it. It was a lot of fun!" exclaims an enthusiastic Sheri.

In addition to her music, Sheri finds time to be active in the drill team, church choir, and fellowship.

She is a member of the Choral and Pop Choirs.

As a freshman, Sheri attended Spring Woods High School and there she qualified for all district and all regional choirs — an outstanding feat for a freshman in such a tough district. As a sophomore, Sheri was named the most outstanding choir student at Taylor, an honor presented to only student each year.

Sheri was first interested in singing when her mother directed the grade school choir at church. "I had to get involved." Sheri added with a smile, "I'm glad I did."

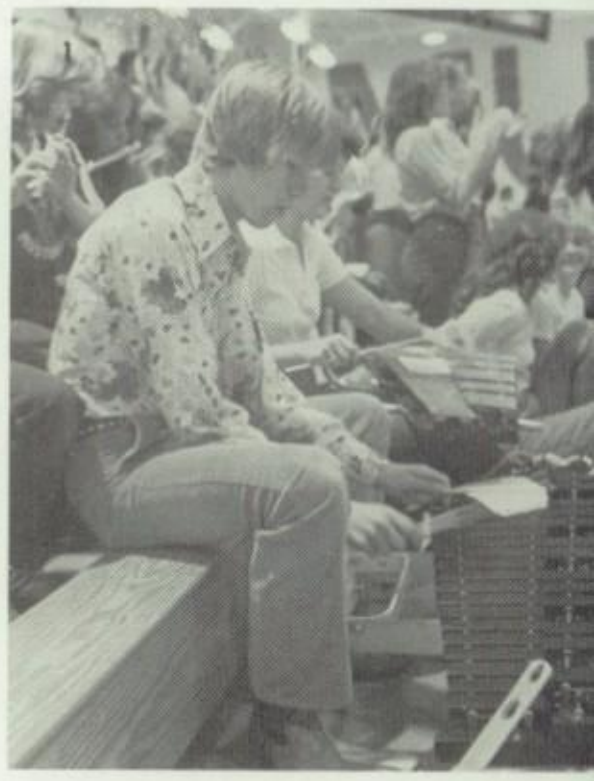
We're the Class

Spring Fever

The return to school from spring break brought a big surprise to many students. Once they arrived at school, students terrifyingly realized they had forgotten their locker combinations.

Before the tardy bell rang Monday, March 22, the halls of Taylor High School were filled with dazed and disappointed faces. Stacks of people stood in line outside Mr. Kloppenburg's office, ashamed and embarrassed for having to ask the principal for their combinations.

Mr. Kloppenburg said he expected some to forget their combinations but not as many as actually did. He added that he was happy that people forgot combinations rather than rigging their lockers!



1. Junior Daryn Seidl proves that it tak deep concentration to play the xylopho at one of our pep rallies.
2. Junior Kim Dukes, busy helping in the o fice, breaks to flash a smile for o photographer.
3. Juniors Heidi Busch and Kevin Murr plead for an extra work day for th research papers.

The Everyday Life of a Principal

Early in the morning about five clock, the phone begins to ring. e voice at the other end says, lease call for a substitute, I'm k." Thus, a typical day for a S principal has begun.

Being a principal is not an easy o. It requires patience, derstanding, and many sponsibilities.

Arriving to school every morn- at approximately 7:00, a prin- al can always expect to re- in in school until 4:00 PM; his y consists of talking to dents, meeting with teachers, nning activities, and handling y crises that might arise.

For Mr. McMeans, a typical y consists of meetings at the ntral Office, spending time king to students, looking in sses, and writing reports. In te of these tasks, Mr. McMeans says, "No two days are alike."

As for Dr. Carthel, Mr. Kloppenburg, and Mr. Brian, their days, like Mr. McMeans', are filled from beginning to end. As head of facilities, Dr. Carthel often plans student activities and gathers data for these activities. Dr. Carthel describes his busiest days as "overly stressful".

Mr. Kloppenburg and Mr. Brian are equally busy. But always, they try to spend at least one or two hours a day checking on classrooms and helping THS students in their problems.

All of the principals are working hard to help to make Taylor High School the best school ever. And, as Mr. Kloppenburg says, "Taylor is the greatest place to be!"

Mathematicians Still Counting 1, 2, 3 . . .

For many freshmen, starting their high school years off with an easy math subject — algebra — is considered to be a breeze! In this class, students gain a better understanding of polynomials, open sentences, and real numbers. However, by their sophomore year, math seems to be different and more difficult. Geometry is the subject, and it requires the memorization of theorems and postulates, and extra practice is needed in order to work many proofs. In addition, many juniors and seniors who are taking trigonometry and elementary analysis find math much more difficult. They are learning about natural logarithms, exponential functions, logic, and the definite integral. But, no matter what students study in the field of mathematics, it is sure to help them in their later years.

History plays an important role in the daily lives of every person. This is why it is so important for each student to be taught the basics of history. History — whether it be World History, American History, or the history of the United States government tends to repeat itself. So if students learn the errors which have been made in the past, it is likely that the same errors will not be made in the future.

Being able to reinforce self-concepts and express oneself more clearly are a few of the many things students learn in Reading and Resource. In addition, these students learn to do equivalent fractions, consumer math, and tax percentage. Aside from this, they read stories in literature such as "Romeo and Juliet" and "The Miracle Worker." From these stories, students learn to write essays and summaries which help them to achieve better understanding.

Along with the regular academic courses offered at Taylor High School, there are various types of Vocational programs. Such programs are VOE, where one can learn how to use various types of office machines and Homemaking, where one learns to improve his family life and cooking ability. The vocational teachers help students to acquire many skills which will help them later in life.

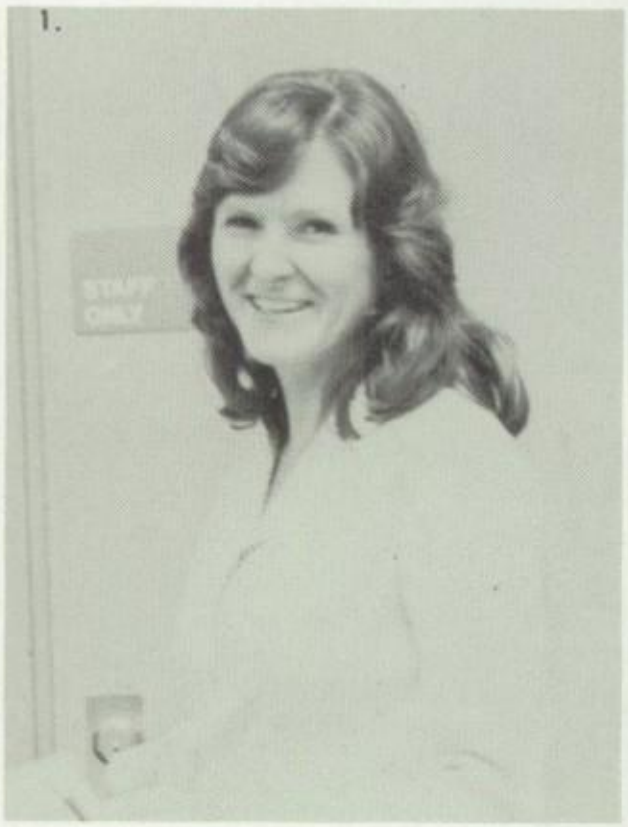
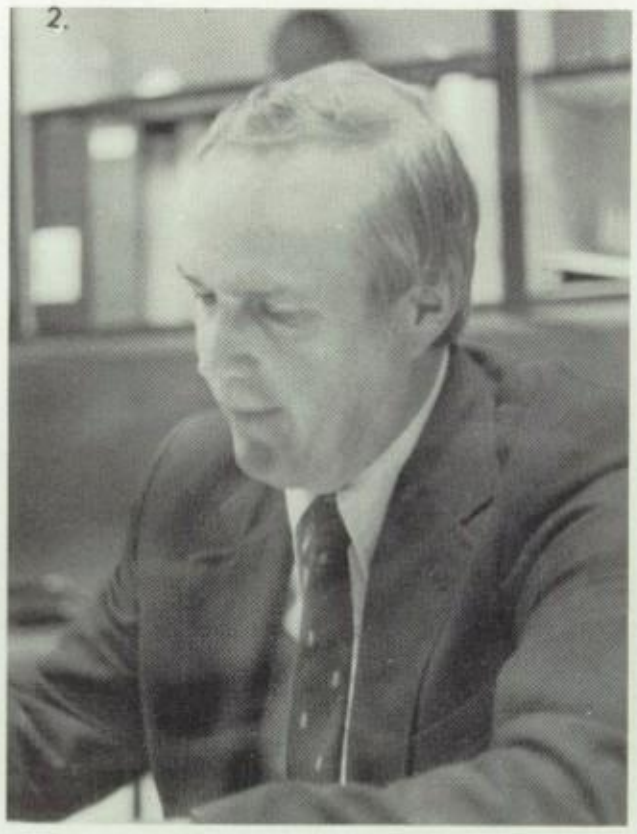
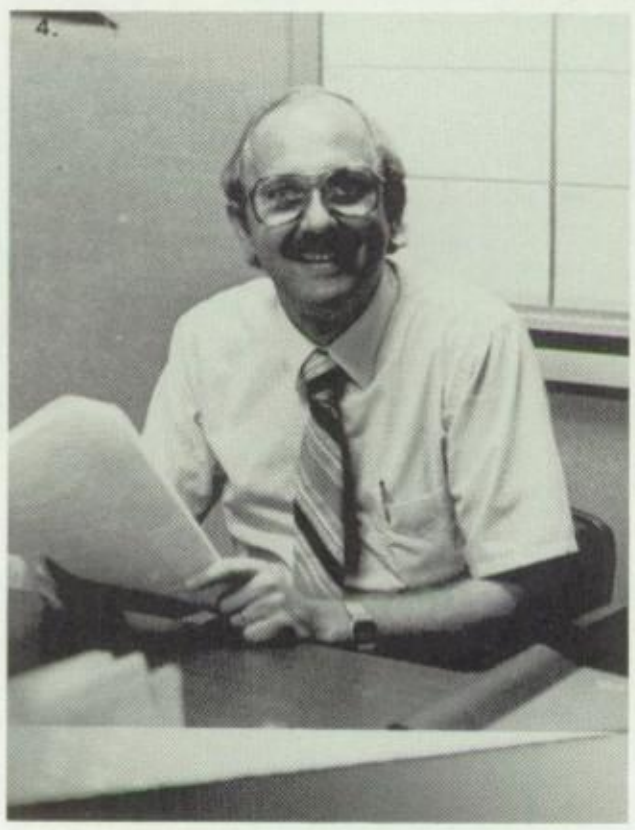
Counselors – Giving Good Advice







1. Mrs. Boehm enjoys being Freshman A-L and Junior counselor.
2. Mr. Williams, Senior counselor, works hard with students' schedules.
3. Mrs. Polsgrove, secretary to the counselors, is always busy.
4. Mr. Fait, Freshman L-M and Sophomore counselor, is all smiles when working with students.

Lending a Helping Hand

"Everything and Anything" is a phrase which describes the job of teachers' aid, Mrs. Frazer. She is always busy — whether it be with typing tests, running off copies, or doing little odd jobs for teachers.

The librarians are also very busy with the tasks of ordering new books and expanding our library. In addition, they are helpful in teaching students how to use the library and its information more efficiently.

Finally, there is our nurse. Her job consists of helping ill students and making sure medicine is properly administered. She also keeps track of all the students health records.

The members of the faculty in each of these areas help contribute to the daily lives of students in our school.

1. Librarian Clerk, Mrs. Montgomery, is always busy stamping cards.
2. Mrs. Hagarty pauses from her busy schedule to answer the telephone.
3. Mrs. Drobnitch waits patiently for ill students.

Cheryl,

There's one thing you should know; you are an extremly good friend, I would hate to lose your friendship. Please forget any differences. ~~Good~~ Well being in your present and future life. When you die, smile and the worms won't eat you.

Love Floyd

P.S.
Vote for me.

Cheryl,

We have known each other for a long time, I always knew we would stay good friends. Good luck in the future and let's stay friends forever. Remember you have to call me about that Let me make.

Love ya,
Kathleen Poston

Cheryl,

It's been great knowing you for all these 3 or so years. You're a great gal and a pretty one too. Good luck in the future. I know you'll be able to succeed in whatever you'll be about. You want.

Love ya,
Joe Thornton

Cheryl,

It's been fun being in classes with you especially Bio. You a good friend and a big + in my life.

Love ya,
Jeff

Cheryl,

Good luck in the future. We'll know each other 11 years, I hope there is many more to come. Love always,

We Finished the Game

As 1981-82 concludes, we would like to thank the following people for helping us play our game:

Peggy Schneider for always being there to offer help when we needed it.

Mr. McMeans for his cooperation in letting us carry through with new ideas and for his sincere concern with our progress.

English teachers for allowing us to schedule individual pictures during their classes.

All teachers and sponsors for allowing us to interrupt from time to time for candid photographs.

Bobbi Weatherly for bringing us excellent pictures of seniors working at Astroworld and Senior Fun Day.

Kee Enterprises for providing our individual underclassman photos.

Rutledge Photography for giving us the senior panoramic picture and the Pacesetters group shot.

Denise Clayton for writing the theme copy and other stories for our book.

To the following journalism students who contributed stories and pictures:

Denise Davis
Carl Brow
Ellen Williams
Laura Prather
Eydie Wahlberg
Hal Swetnam
Stephanie Reyna
Joe Buddner
Jim Rossman
Lisa Arunyon

To other students who volunteered their time to help us meet our deadlines.

When the 1981-82 school year began, we faced a whole new game. As it ends we feel we have won that game and have set forth a strategy for players of the future. We hope you enjoyed the game.
